The European social partners support Article 3 of the Treaty on European Union (TEU), which sets the objective of working for a highly competitive social market economy and Article 9 of the Treaty on the functioning of the European Union (TEU) promoting "a high level of employment.
In 1991, European social ( policy, Twenty two years la believe that time is ripe to a within the renewed EU ecor	2	the guarantee of adequate social protection, the fight against social exclusion, and a high level of education, training and protection of human health." Social dialogue and well-developed industrial relations at all levels are a orucial element of the European social model and democratic government. Appropriate involvement of social partners in economic and employment policies is thus seemial.
Through this declaration se BUSINESSEUROPE, UEAF - shape our future involven series of recommendations.	3	Articles 151-152 TFEU state, among others, the principle that the EU should facilitate social dialogue, respecting the autonomy of the social partners.
There might be new develo their involvement and to cor TRIPARTITE SOCIAL SUMMI	4	The decision on how to organise wage bargaining is a national competence. Wage negotiations are organised at different levels in European countries in line with different industrial relations traditions. Article 153.5 of the TFEU concerning social policy establishes that the issue of pay is out of the scope of EU competences. This should be taken into account by EU institutions, the European social partners and national governments.
	5	Social dialogue can be a driving force for successful economic and social reforms. Social partners can raise awareness of the consequences of economic and social change on social systems and labour markets. They can also play a key role in putting in place the conditions that will stimulate job creation, notably by facilitating economic recovery and labour market and social inclusion.
	6	The social dimension of the EMU should contribute to economic and social progress in the EU. This means that policies should be designed to be conducive to economic and social progress.
	7	Involving social partners in the elaboration and implementation of policies affecting directly or indirectly employment and labour markets all along the different steps of the European semester is essential with the view of taking into account their position. Social partner consultations should be timely and meaningful, allowing the necessary analysis and proposals and fitting within decision making processes.
	8	A transparent monitoring of employment performances and progress towards the Europe 2020 targets needs to be organised. The European social partners should here be involved in setting the relevant benchmarking indicators.
	9	There is no need for new structures/mechanisms to involve social partners in European economic governance. Improvements could nevertheless be obtained through a better functioning and coordination as well as in some cases through adapting existing structures/mechanisms as suggested in this statement.
	10	There needs to be a coherent process of consultation of national and/or European social partners by Governments at national level, and with the Commission/Council/Parliament at European level.
